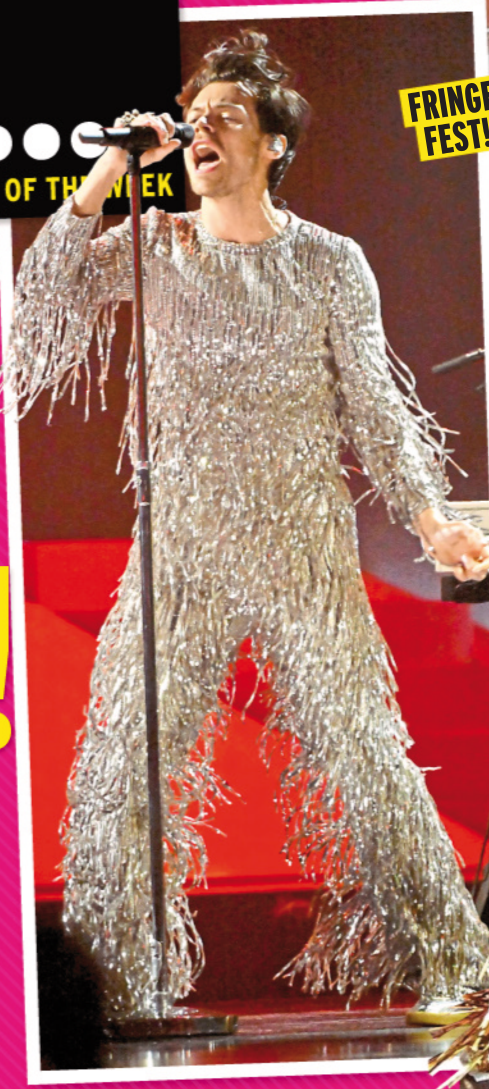
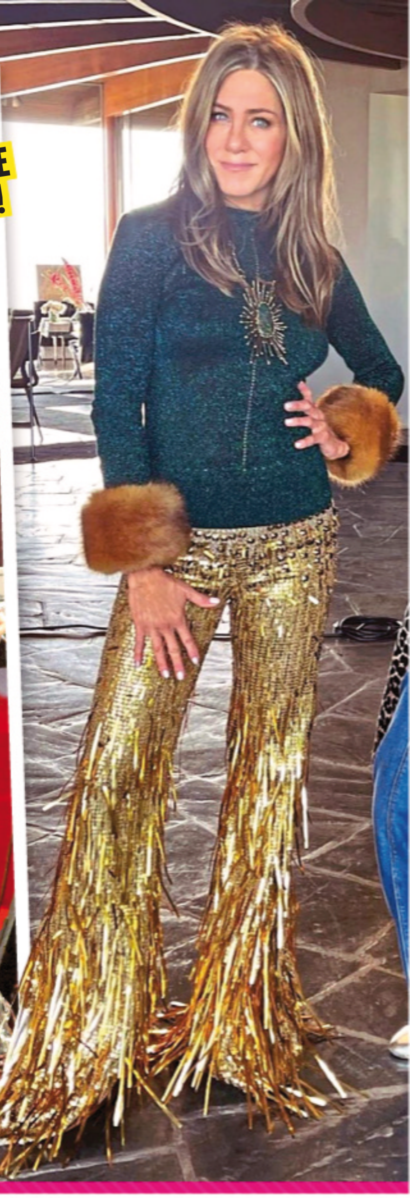
Jen & Harry: STYLES TWINS!





FRINGE FEST!

Jennifer Aniston and Harry Styles both know what makes them beautiful – and it's often the same outfit! The singer, 29, and his self-proclaimed crush, 54, have been spotted in surprisingly similar clothes, including the exact same Gucci suit, which she donned in a 2021 photo shoot not long after he wore it on the red carpet for the Brit Awards. "Just call me Harriet Styles," she joked on Instagram. He wishes, Jen!

WHERE'S THE LOVE?

FAKEOUTOFTHEWEEK

WAS THIS KISS CGI?!

Spoiler alert: This rom-com had a not-so-happy ending. Viewers of Netflix's You People doubted that the main couple, played by Lauren London and Jonah Hill, would be attracted to each other, and apparently there was no love lost in real life, either. "The final scene, they don't even kiss. It's CGI," co-star Andrew Schulz recently alleged. "I'm there watching the wedding – and I see them go in for the kiss, and their faces stop. And I'm like, 'They're probably just gonna cut right there.' But in the movie, you see their faces morph into a fake kiss!" True or not, critics agree: They get an F in chemistry!

Move over, Gwyneth! Kourtney Kardashian is plugging sex-positive products for private parts, and this one's a lot less, um, invasive than that controversial Goop jade egg. "You know what they say…you are what you eat," Kourt, 43, says of Lemme Purr gummies, which apparently support the "taste, odor and freshness" of one's vagina, "complete with pineapple extract for added sweetness." No word on whether it comes with a testimonial from her husband, Travis Barker.

SHE DOESN'T BITE, ASHTON!

MOST. AWKWARD. RED. CARPET. EVER.

The New York Times calls Reese Witherspoon and Ashton Kutcher's new rom-com, Your Place or Mine, "phony and flat" — which is exactly how many described the actors' chemistry on the red carpet at the premieres (including LA on Feb. 2). "They were so awkward — no touching at all," wrote one online commenter. But Ashton, 45, had a simple explanation for the distance between him and his co-star, 46: "Here's the thing: If I put my arm around her, and was all friendly with her, the rumor would be I'm having an affair with her. If I stand next to her and put my hands in my pockets, there's no chance that that could be the rumor. Then the rumor is we don't like each other." And that's OK?!

HOWDY, COWBOYS!

Yellowstone SHAKE-UP!

Kevin's out, Matt's in?! That's the rumor following Deadline's recent report that Yellowstone's co-creator and showrunner, Taylor Sheridan, is ending the series in its current form because Kevin Costner, 68, is exiting as John Dutton. A new show will be created to continue the Dutton saga — with Matthew McConaughey, 53, in talks to star. Kevin has allegedly created a major headache for producers. He had originally limited himself to 65 days of shooting, then only wanted to shoot for 50 days for the first part of the current, fifth season and a week for the second batch of episodes. Sources say the friction between Kevin and Taylor has torpedoed morale on the show. "Kevin gave them an ultimatum, and the higher-ups apparently called his bluff," a source tells In Touch. "They're scrapping the show and creating a new one centered around Matthew, who is currently in negotiations." Needless to say, there's more drama behind the scenes than on the show, which, at 84 percent, is down seven points from last season on Rotten Tomatoes. But Paramount is remaining mum on the future of the series, saying, "We have no news to report. Kevin Costner is a big part of Yellowstone, and we hope that's the case for a long time to come."

GUESS WHO?!

This aging former superhero – he's also a Best Actor Oscar nominee – threw a temper tantrum when studio heads threatened to kill his problematic film. He's not even the reason why the movie was almost shelved – it's the bad behavior of the young star of the movie that almost got it canceled. But the veteran's hissy fit worked – the film is coming out this summer.

ARMIE'S SHOCK INTERVIEW:

ELIZABETH RESPONDS!

Almost two years after ex-husband Armie Hammer was called a cannibal and accused of "master-slave fetishes," Elizabeth Chambers is finally sharing her side of the story. "I was learning things as the public was," says the Bird Bakery founder, 40. "I was like, 'There are no words. What the f---?'" Multiple women came forward following their 2020 split claiming they'd been sexually assaulted by the 36-year-old actor. While Armie – who has never been charged with any crime – insists that in each of his B.D.S.M. encounters, consent was asked for and received, he did admit to acting selfishly and has since completed a stint at a Florida rehab for drug, alcohol and sex issues. "All I've ever wanted is for him to be sober, healthy and happy. And he is that," says Elizabeth, who shares daughter Harper, 8, and son Ford, 6, with Armie. "He's really present when he's with the kids, and that's all I can hope for."

WHY MEGAN DUMPED MGK

So much for being two halves of the same soul. Just a week after Megan Fox gushed about Machine Gun Kelly at the Grammys – telling the world about his "beautiful face" – the actress, 36, has broken their engagement and dumped him. She deleted all of his photos from her Instagram accounts. She then took some bathroom selfies and posted them on Instagram with the caption, "You can taste the dishonesty/ it's all over your breath." Her photo dump even came with a video of a burning letter! The implication, a source tells In Touch, is that the rapper, 32, "cheated on her. Megan even then started following Harry Styles, Timothée Chalamet and MGK's archrival, Eminem, on Instagram! Of course, Megan and MGK have always had a volatile relationship, so who knows if she will take him back. Time will tell."

Shiloh's brother Maddox enrolled at Yonsei University in South Korea in 2019, and in 2022, he and Pax worked in the assistant directors' department on Angelina's next directorial effort, Without Blood. Zahara started classes at Spelman College last fall. The twins are still in high school.

PROUD DAD

"Brad and Shiloh have always shared an unbreakable bond," says an insider.

She looked impossibly cool. Wearing an oversize black hoodie over short shorts and white sneakers, the tall, gamine beauty made her way out of a Gelson's supermarket in LA on Jan. 31 and headed to her car clutching a bottle of water and a bag of licorice snacks. The white AirPods she'd popped into her ears were visible thanks to her bold, statement-making hairstyle — a newly shaved head. It's a look few could pull off, but with her pillowy lips and beautiful blue eyes, not to mention a jawline and cheekbones that could cut glass — traits inherited from her movie star parents — 16-year-old Shiloh Jolie-Pitt was simply stunning.

Just a few months shy of her 17th birthday, Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie's middle daughter has transformed. And it's not just her appearance. "Shiloh is growing up really fast and is already making plans to live on her own," says an insider, explaining that Shiloh has been thriving as she's made friends in dance class, at school, on social media and beyond. "She has a very impressive mini network of like-minded friends around the world." Shiloh has also begun to explore romance, a Hollywood career and a deeper relationship with her father, 59, who because of the custody war with Angelina, 47, has missed out on precious time with Shiloh and her siblings — Maddox, 21, Pax, 19, Zahara, 18, and Knox and Vivienne, 14 — following their bitter split in 2016. "Shiloh is very outgoing and knows what she wants, and that includes having her father back in her life," says the insider. "It's like she grew up overnight."

SHOOTING STAR

Angelina has encouraged Shiloh to make connections and not limit herself. "Shiloh has met people she's interested in dating, but of course they have to be Mom-approved," says the insider. The teenager has also started earning money thanks to her talent and ambition. "She's been offered lucrative modeling gigs, which she's mulling over, but Shiloh says modeling isn't her thing. She'd use the paychecks to finance the dance, art and movie projects she would like to do."

Her parents might be wealthy, but she doesn't expect them to fund everything. "Shiloh is savvy when it comes to finances," explains the insider, who says the teen's a go-getter who's been "raking in about $14,000 a week" doing various jobs. "She's taken on small dance gigs," says the insider — the result of years of hip-hop dance training at LA's Millennium Dance Complex. (Some of her dance videos have gone viral in recent years.) "She also tutors and reads books she thinks could become films," adds the insider. "And Shiloh lined up a production assistant job on one of Angie's upcoming movies," so she can learn even more about the business.

DIVORCE DRAMA

When Shiloh was younger, Angelina already knew her precocious daughter would one day grow into a force. "I think I'm recognizing some of myself in that one," the Oscar winner said in 2007, predicting, "She's going to be a little bit of trouble!" Shiloh is even challenging her mother's choice to drag out her breakup from Brad, which

THROUGH THE YEARS

A BEAUTIFUL BABY

Born in Namibia in 2006, Shiloh Nouvel joined adopted siblings Zahara, Maddox and Pax about a year after Brad and Angelina went public with their romance.

FANTASY WORLD

At age 2, Shiloh told her parents "she only wants to be called" by the nicknames John or Peter. "It's a Peter Pan thing," Brad explained.

TOTAL TOMBOY

For years, Shiloh favored short hair and black clothes like her older brothers. She and Zahara were a contrast at a 2019 Maleficent: Mistress of Evil premiere.

GLAMOROUS YOUNG LADY

Shiloh wore a black vintage Versace A-line dress and an updo to the Rome Eternals premiere in 2021.

CAMBODIA 2022!

is now in its seventh year, as their fights over custody and a financial settlement remain ongoing. "Shiloh isn't shy. She's very vocal," says the insider. "She's been begging Angie to finalize her divorce settlement with her dad. She wants her to move on and be happy."

Shiloh has made her peace with her parents' painful split. "Unlike her mom, she's doesn't hold a grudge," says the insider. "She's forgiven her father for his behavior that led up to the split. She knows Brad is sober now and doing his best." In fact, reveals the insider, even though it's been clear for years that her older brothers long ago sided with their mom in the wake of the breakup, "Shiloh actually gets along really well with her dad" and respects his enormous success as a movie producer. "They're even working on a film project together."

DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL

Brad's incredibly proud of her. After footage of Shiloh dancing to Doja Cat's hit song "Vegas" blew up when it hit the internet in June, he gushed about her talent. "It brings a tear to the eye," Brad said of Shiloh's love for dance, adding that she's "very beautiful." He's in awe of her skills, he admitted, considering how bad his own moves are. "I don't know where she got it from. I'm Mr. Two-Left-Feet here," he quipped.

Many celebrities' children have rejected the "nepo-baby" label that's dominated pop culture in recent months. Shiloh, however, understands that she'll never escape accusations of nepotism in Hollywood and won't waste energy worrying about it, says the insider. "Shiloh will have no problem getting started in whatever field she ultimately chooses, but it doesn't hurt that she's the spitting image of both of her gorgeous parents, either," says the insider. "She may want to strike out on her own, but she has no problem using her famous parents to get her foot in the door."

She's got more than just their good looks going for her — she's also got their instincts and a desire to learn even more. "Shiloh's got Angie's wild and creative side, which could really serve her well," says the insider. "And she's got Brad's business sense. She's one smart cookie — and will go far." ■ 1996.

Dearest Susie & Tarik,

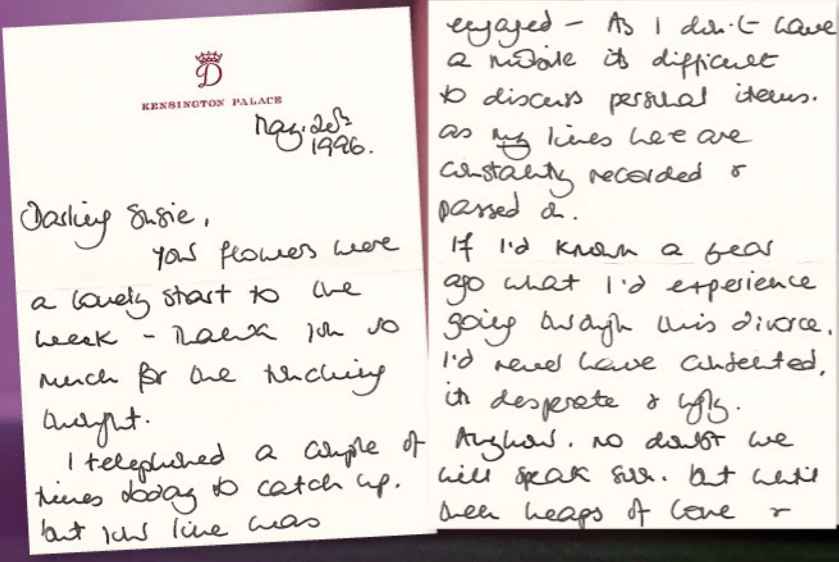
I'm not much of a friend when I cancel my visit to the opera on the day I know, but I am having a very difficult time & the pressure is serious & coming from all sides ——.

Please forgive me for being unable to come to Tosca. I've been so looking forward to our evening together...

Its too difficult sometimes to keep ones head up & today I'm on my knees & just longing for this divorce to go through as the personal cost is tremendous.

Lots of love
from. Diana.

Diana's LONG LOST LETTERS FOUND



KENSINGTON PALACE

May: 20th
1996.

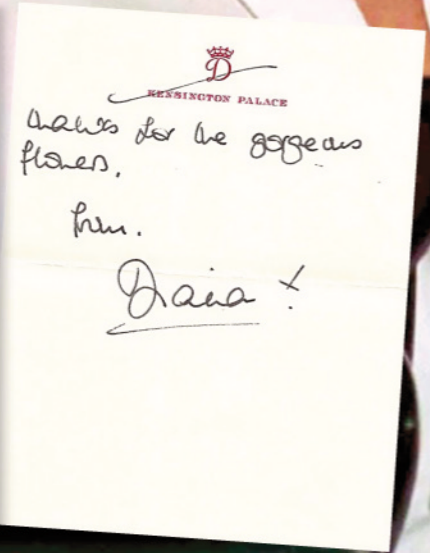
Darling Susie,

your flowers were a lovely start to the week - thank you so much for the touching thought.

I telephoned a couple of times today to catch up, but your line was engaged - As I don't have a mobile its difficult to discuss personal items, as my lines here are constantly recorded & passed on.

If I'd known a year ago what I'd experience going through this divorce, I'd never have consented, its desperate & ugly.

Anyhow, no doubt we will speak soon, but until then heaps of love &



KENSINGTON PALACE

thanks for the gorgeous flowers.

As emotional notes written by Princess Di are unearthed, King Charles faces a new crisis

For more than 25 years, they have been locked away. During the last two tumultuous years of her life, the late Princess Diana poured her heart out to her close friends Susie and Tarek Kassem in a series of "highly personal letters and cards," according to British auction house Lay's, which was scheduled to auction off the letters on Feb. 16. In them, Diana wrote about her struggles with the royal family in the midst of her contentious divorce from Prince Charles — which continued to torment her in the months before her tragic 1997 death. Lay's said acquiring the "astonishing, confidential collection" of notes (32 pieces in all) would be like "owning the treasured relic of a saint."

A saint who continues to get revenge on her ex-husband from the grave. "The sale of these letters couldn't come at a worse time for Charles as he's preparing for his coronation," says a source. The king and mistress-turned-wife-turned-Queen Camilla "spent years working to rehabilitate their reputation after being villainized for their treatment of the beloved People's Princess, and now people are being reminded of his and his family's cruelty in Diana's own, powerful words."

INTIMATE SECRETS

Diana told the Kassems everything. In one letter to the couple, whom Diana met through her charity work at a London hospital, she expresses gratitude for how protective they are of her, shading the royal family by adding, "I'm not used to that!" That particular note was written at the height of the media frenzy over Diana's controversial interview on BBC's Panorama in 1995.

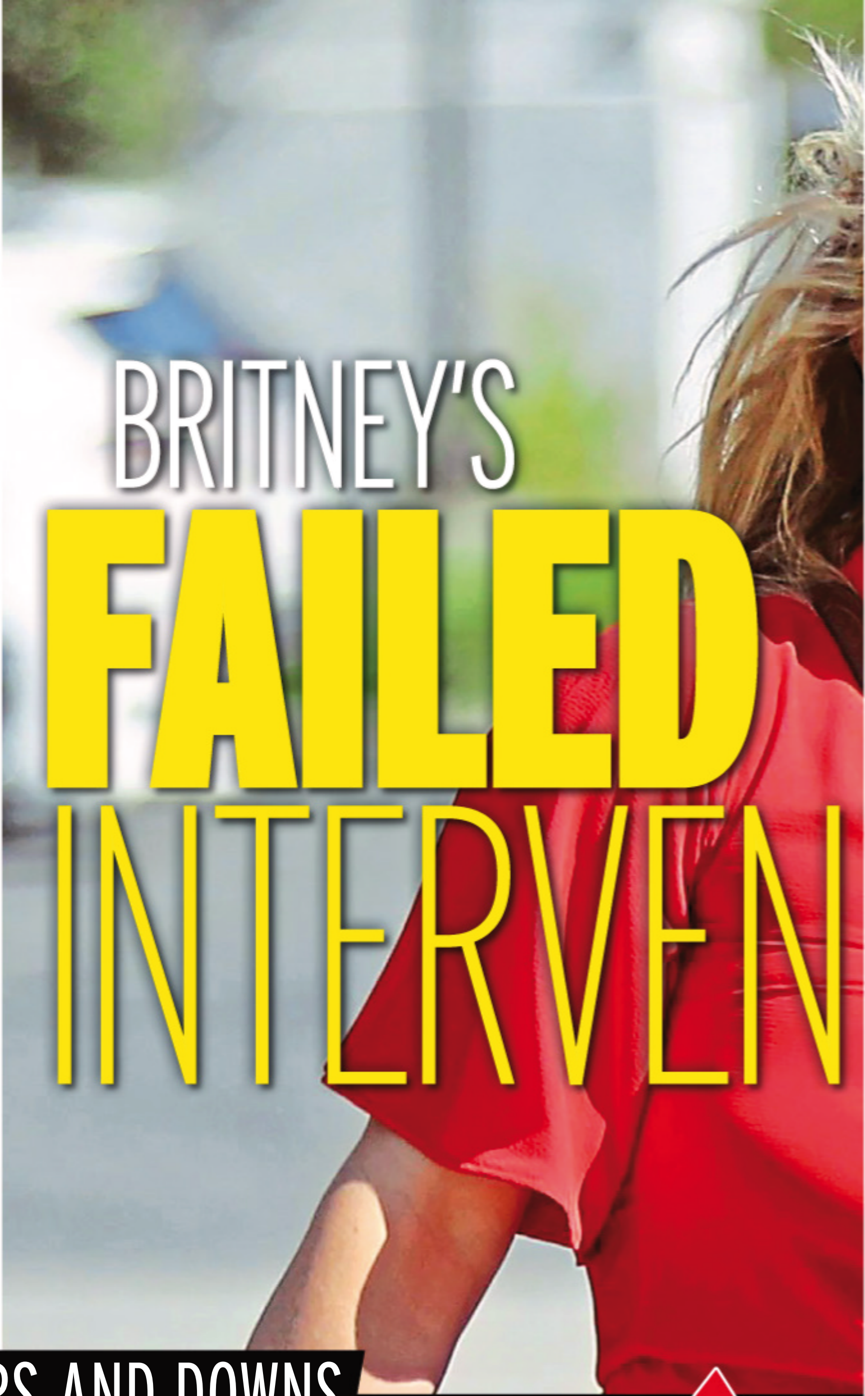
HAUNTED BY HIS EX

The strain of her divorce was on her mind often in 1996. In another note (top left), Diana heartbreakingly reveals that the "difficult time" and "pressure" have brought her to her "knees...just longing for this divorce to go through as the personal cost is tremendous." In another (bottom left), she writes of her phones being bugged and laments, "If I'd known a year ago what I'd experience going through this divorce, I'd never have consented, it's desperate and ugly."

The last letters are dated May 1997 — three months before Diana was killed in a car crash at age 36 in Paris. "The Kassems have kept some of their more personal and confidential letters," Lay's said in a statement. And that's concerning for Charles, 74, and Camilla, 75. "Those final letters are bound to come out at some point, and who knows what else Diana wrote about them?" says the source, noting that Charles has held crisis meetings with lawyers and royal courtiers in hopes of finding out what's in the missing stash of notes. "He doesn't want all his hard work to fix his public image to come crashing down, right when he's about to be crowned king!" ■

MORE BAD NEWS FOR CHARLES

This should make The Crown look flattering. Netflix has greenlighted a new movie about Prince Andrew's disastrous 2019 interview with BBC anchor Emily Maitlis, in which he awkwardly tried to defend his longtime friendship with late convicted sex offender and pedophile Jeffrey Epstein. It will star Gillian Anderson (who played Margaret Thatcher on The Crown) and Rufus Sewell. "Andrew was forced to step out of the public eye after the interview for a reason," says the source. "The last thing Charles needs is for this massive scandal to be rehashed!"



BRITNEY'S FAILED INTERVEN

Rejecting an attempt to force her to get help, Britney Spears takes charge of her own health

Britney Spears spent the day as she usually does: posting on Instagram. "I posted the wrong video of me singing yesterday.... Mortified, completely mortified!!!" the pop star wrote in her scatterbrained, confessional style next to the first of four posts on Feb. 7 — a video of her strutting to a Drake song in a new gold dress. "Embrace the fall!!! Yep and try to play it off...yep that's me!!!!"

That same day, her loved ones were plotting to keep her from falling even further. Concerned that she was spiraling again more than a year after her strict 13-year conservatorship was lifted, and reportedly "afraid for her life," Britney's husband, Sam Asghari, and other members of her inner circle had scheduled an intervention. "But Britney got wind of it and freaked out about being 'trapped' so, needless to say, it was a total failure," a source tells In Touch. "Fortunately, she did agree to meet with a doctor, but everyone's still worried."

An outraged Britney denies that anything is wrong. "At some point, enough is enough! [I'm] doing the best I can!" she wrote in a series of Instagram posts after the news made headlines, insisting she's only taking "Prozac for depression" (despite having previously been on lithium and other drugs over the years to treat bipolar disorder). Sam, 28, also spoke out. "An intervention britneyspears It makes me sick to my stomach that it's even legal for people to make up stories that I almost died ... I mean at some point enough is enough !!! I'm probably going to have to stop posting on Instagram because even though I enjoy doing it, there's obviously a lot of people who don't wish me well !!! I'm honestly not surprised at all ... Again doing the best I can !!! Again, the conservatorship has been over for almost a year ... No folks, it's not 2007 ... it's 2023 and I'm making my first homemade lasagna at home !!! did not occur," he said in a carefully worded statement, without denying that one had been planned. "My wife is in full control of her life and will continue to make all decisions involving her care regardless of circumstances."

THE SIGNS WERE ALL THERE

No one can deny that those circumstances have been incredibly trying. Britney herself has admitted it's been difficult adjusting to freedom from her conservatorship over the past 15 months (see sidebar). Even her most devoted fans, who spearheaded the "Free Britney" movement, had grown increasingly concerned over erratic behavior online and lack of public appearances late last year, even speculating that their idol was in serious trouble.

Her loved ones are at a loss. "There were obviously red flags — otherwise Sam and her friends wouldn't have gone through the trouble to intervene," says the source. "The truth is she has good days and bad days, and in the past month, there were more bad ones." And with the world watching her every move, "there's all this pressure for her to be 'fine' even when she's clearly not," adds the source. "But Britney is adamant even to those in her inner circle that she's healthier now than she's ever been."

And, as Sam noted, she's determined to deal with it herself. "The last thing Britney wants is to give them an excuse to control her life again. She'll avoid that at all costs," says the source. "Everyone is rooting for Britney, and right now, those close to her can only hope that she chooses to seek treatment." ■

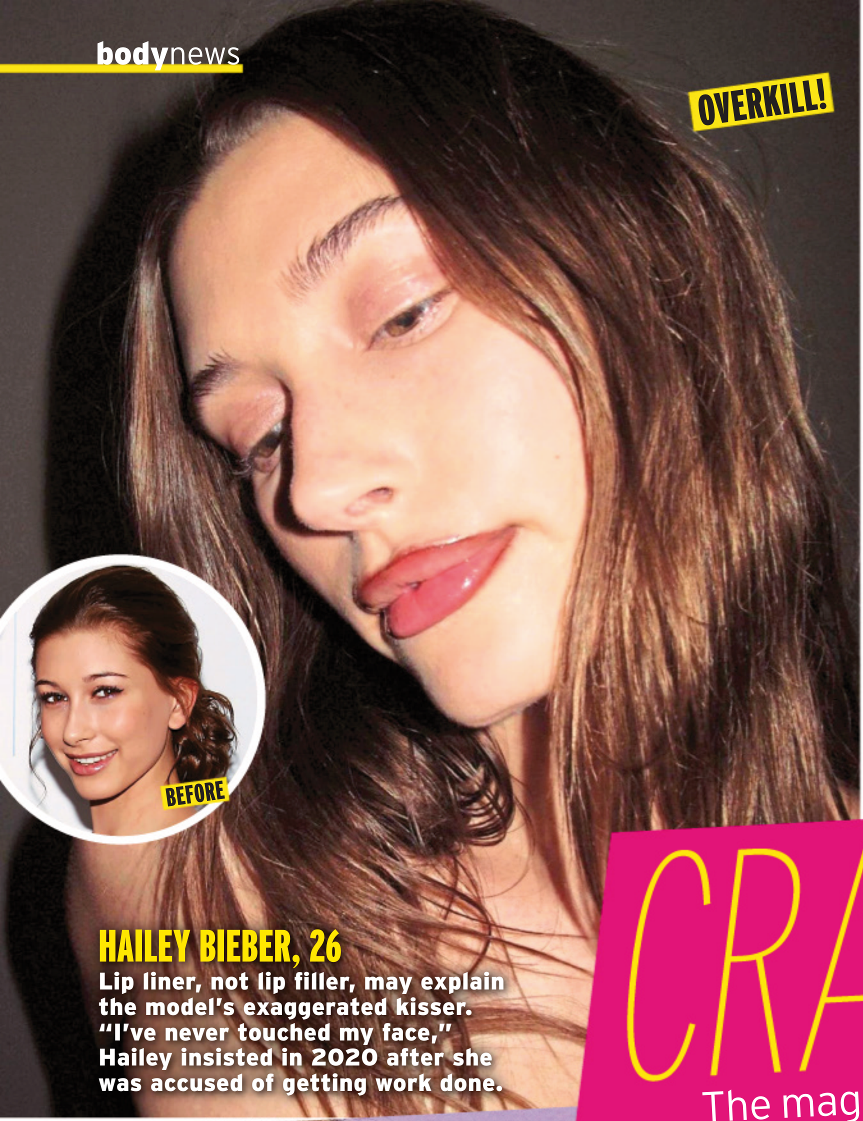
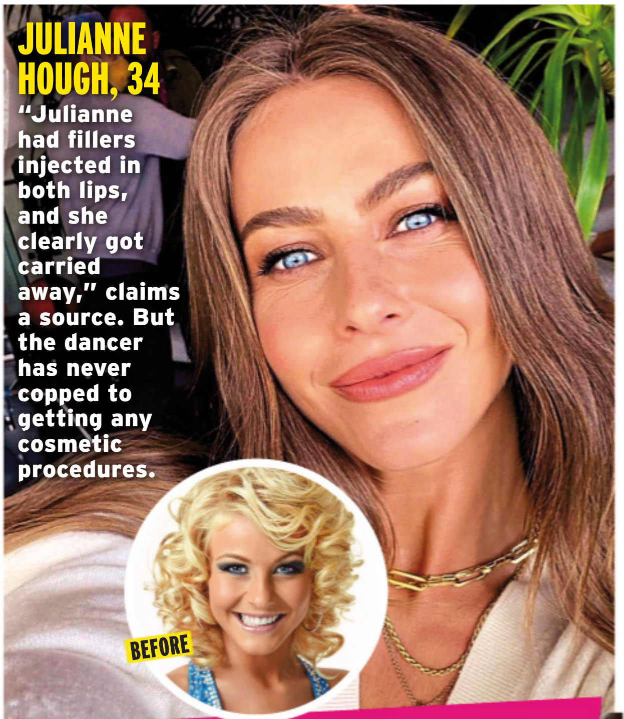
CRAZY LIPS

The magic of makeup – or going overboard with fillers? Stars plump their pouts!



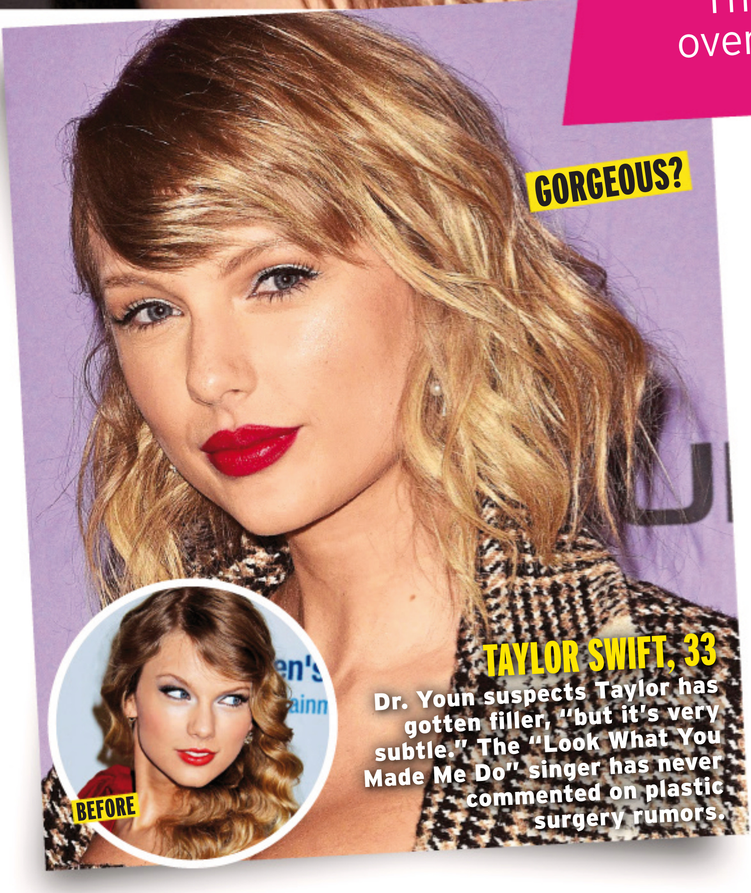
HAILEY BIEBER, 26

Lip liner, not lip filler, may explain the model's exaggerated kisser. "I've never touched my face," Hailey insisted in 2020 after she was accused of getting work done.



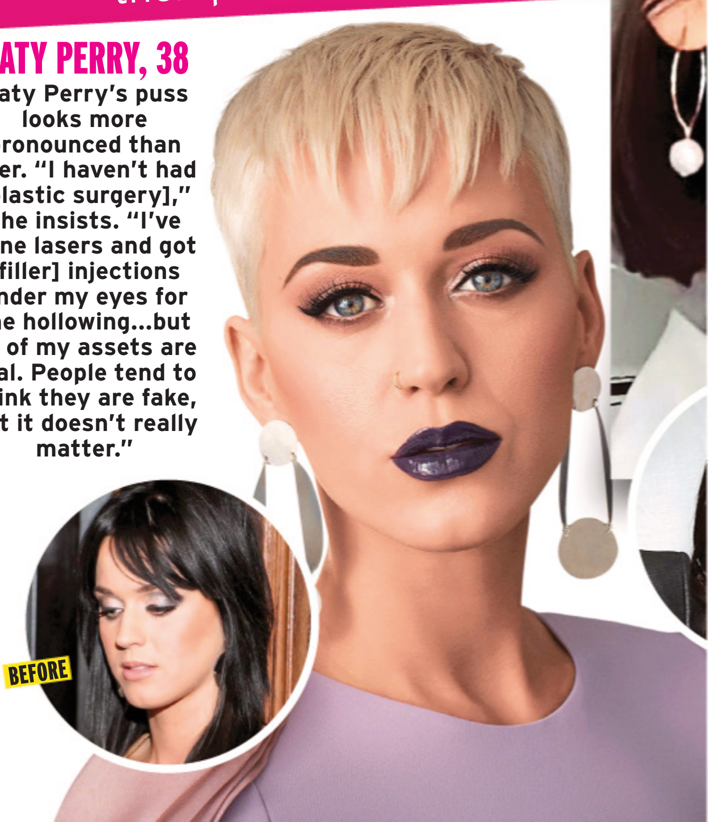
JULIANNE HOUGH, 34

"Julianne had fillers injected in both lips, and she clearly got carried away," claims a source. But the dancer has never copped to getting any cosmetic procedures.



TAYLOR SWIFT, 33

Dr. Youn suspects Taylor has gotten filler, "but it's very subtle." The "Look What You Made Me Do" singer has never commented on plastic surgery rumors.



KATY PERRY, 38

Katy Perry's puss looks more pronounced than ever. "I haven't had [plastic surgery]," she insists. "I've done lasers and got [filler] injections under my eyes for the hollowing...but all of my assets are real. People tend to think they are fake, but it doesn't really matter."

SELENA GOMEZ, 30

Dr. Anthony Youn, America's holistic plastic surgeon, believes Selena most likely had her lips plumped. Not so, says the "Calm Down" singer: "I am perfect the way I am."

FROZEN!
BEFORE

MADONNA, 64

The Material Girl was slammed at the recent Grammys for getting bad plastic surgery, but Madge clapped back, "Many people chose to only talk about close-up photos of me taken with a long lens camera by a press photographer that would distort anyone's face!"

YIKES!
BEFORE

BELLA HADID, 26

"The injections are pretty dramatic, and she likely had more injected," Dr. Youn believes of the model, who copped to getting a nose job at age 14. "I wish I had kept the nose of my ancestors," she later said. "I would have grown into it."

*DR. YOUN HASN'T TREATED ANY OF THE CELEBS FEATURED IN THIS STORY.

CHRISTINA AGUILERA, 42

Dr. Youn also believes Christina has had lip injections, multiple times. But the "What a Girl Wants" singer says less is more these days: "I still love getting glammed up, but I want to show imperfections on this go-round."

InTouch with… SNOOP DOGG

On Pal Martha Stewart: We're Like Family!

The legendary hip-hop star shares a deep connection with his unlikely celebrity BFF

He's a rapper known for songs like "Gin & Juice" and "Nuthin' But a G Thang." She's a lifestyle expert known for her upside-down lemon meringue pie and popular line of linens. Yet, somehow, musician Snoop Dogg, 51, and domestic goddess Martha Stewart, 81, have developed a genuine friendship that's spanned 15 years. "We naturally love some of the same things, and when you put two people in the same room who love life and business, something is bound to happen," says Snoop, who first bonded with Martha during a few memorable appearances on her former show Martha, and later starred with her in Martha and Snoop's Potluck Dinner Party, which debuted on VH-1 in 2016. "We're like family." As for his biological kin, Snoop (real name Calvin Broadus) shares three children (Corde, 28, Cordell, 25, and Cori, 23) with his wife of 26 years, Shante, along with five grandkids. Here, the entrepreneur — he recently celebrated the grand opening of "Tha Dogg House" with Funko, the company's first co-branded retail experience for fans — talks to In Touch*'s Lindsay Hoffman about hanging with Martha, his best relationship advice and his secret talent.*

IT'S A GOOD THING

"She's a cool girl," Snoop raves of Martha.

Why do you and Martha get along so well?

SD: She's fun to be around, and I'm fun to be around, so why wouldn't we have fun together? I was recently in Vegas deejaying, and she was in the VIP section rocking with me. I had to play "That's My Best Friend!"

Do you own Martha Stewart linens?

SD: She brought me a big-ass...what was the green thing we never use? The Big Green Egg, a barbecuing thing. It was too expensive for my style.

THREE GENERATIONS

Snoop (with his family) describes himself as a "father, mentor and a friend" to his children, and a "get-away-with-everything kind of grandpa."

You've got your own Funko collaboration. What's next?

SD: An ice cream shop!

What's the secret to your success?

SD: I've always had the same work ethic as far as attacking something. Once you have the mentality of loving yourself and learning how to master your craft, the rest is set.

How have you maintained a happy marriage all these years?

SD: Giving them everything they want, getting out the way, saying yes, yes, yes. I learned that by saying no, no, no and getting in the way. Experience is a good teacher. We've grown as boyfriend and girlfriend to grandparents to soulmates.

How is being a grandfather different?

SD: With my kids, I was more firm and direct. I would just tell them to do something. But I have to do in-depth therapy work with my grandkids. Now it's, "No, you have to do this and then that. Do you have all these steps? OK, give me a hug."

How do you keep the balance between family and career?

SD: I'm a Libra, so I naturally have that in my DNA. But I think the more you put love into things, the more balanced it becomes.

Do you ever want to retire?

SD: I told my son the other day that I'm trying to retire, and he says, "What do you mean, Pops?" I said retirement means do less and maybe pull back so I can enjoy a fishing trip or go mountain-climbing or something I've never done before.

But not quitting the business entirely?

SD: Who's the oldest person in music right now? The Rolling Stones? Elton John? He's still going. When you see people like that and they're still doing it, it's inspiring. We ain't stopping! ■

JAMES CORDEN :

"Beyoncé was stuck in traffic and missed her first televised Grammy Award of the night. As someone who lives in LA, I did feel for her. Traffic on the 405 is actually one of the only things that can break your soul."

JIMMY FALLON :

"Tom Brady stars in 80 for Brady and suggested there could be more acting in his future. He's a very good actor, because right now we all believe that he's really going to retire."

STEPHEN COLBERT :

"Quebec has its own groundhog, Fred La Marmotte. But tragedy struck when Fred passed away on Groundhog Day. So it turns out he did see a shadow, but it was the icy hand of death."

JIMMY KIMMEL:

"Netflix is cracking down on password sharing. Their plan is to limit sharing to family members who live in your household. This is going to be a huge blow to Nick Cannon."

SETH MEYERS:

"Authorities in Texas located inside the closet of an abandoned home two emperor tamarin monkeys that went missing from the Dallas Zoo — and the police left them there because, at this point, that's a more secure location than the Dallas Zoo."

JAMES CORDEN :

"Here's what Harry Styles wore on the Grammys red carpet. He only exposed half of each nipple, and that's how you can tell it's a formal occasion."
